Samarbeidsavtale for prosjektet COSTT

Det vises til oversendelsesnotat av 15.05.2009. Etter anmodning i dag oversendes en vitenskapelig begrunnelse for hvorfor prosjektleder ved Institutt for datateknikk og informasjonsvitenskap i 2008 fremforhandlet en avtale som vil gi Konsortiestyret anledning til å forsinke publisering med inntil 12. mnd.

” The COSTT consortium consists of a mix of academic and industrial partners. The industrial partners bring into the project both knowledge of the application domain (e.g. health IT) and products. These products are to be used as a basis for the research within the COSTT project. Part of the research will result in new components that will be added to the existing products and tested in coherence with them. Although the partners fully agree that the IPR of established project results (including developed and tested new components) belongs to the consortium, we foresee that there will be cases in which the demarcation between products that were brought in to the project and a newly established result might be unclear. These cases might require close examination before the results are published in order not to damage commercial interests of the industrial partners. Even though all partners have the basic attitude to make results public and as soon as possible, we judged it wise to have the freedom to delay publication when appropriate and practical. For this reason the participants agreed in 2008 that the Consortium Agreement should make it legal for the Project Board to decide on delays until 12 months.”
